RMI (Technology.php?tech=36&subject=RMI Interview Questions and Answers) 31	Ques 20. How do I provide internationalized AJAX interactions? Ans. Just because you are using XML does not mean you can properly send and receive localized content using AJAX requests. To provide internationalized AJAX components you need to do the following: * Set the charset of the page to an encoding that is supported by your target languages. I tend to use UTF-8 because it covers the most languages. The following meta declaration in a HTML/JSP page will set the content type: <meta http-equiv="Content-Type" content="text/html; charset=UTF-8"> * In the page JavaScript make sure to encode any parameters sent to the server. JavaScript provides the escape() function which returns Unicode escape strings in which localized text will appear in hexadecimal format. For more details on JavaScript encoding see Comparing escape(), encodeURI(), and encodeURIComponent(). * On the server-side component set the character encoding using the HttpServletRequest.setCharacterEncoding() method. Before you access the localized parameter using the HttpServletRequest.getParameter() call. In the case of UTF this would be request.setCharacterEncoding("UTF-8"); A server-side component returning AJAX responses needs to set the encoding of the response to the same encoding used in the page. response.setContentType("text/xml;charset=UTF-8"); response.getWriter().write("<response>invalid </response>"); For more information on using AJAX with Java Enterprise Edition technologies see AJAX and Internationalization and for developing multi-lingual applications see Developing Multilingual Web Applications Using JavaServer Pages Technology .	.NET C#.NET (OnlineTestStart.php?quizId=71&quiz=C#.NET Online Practice Test Online Exam)
